LEGION MOVES TO GET JOBS FOR SERVICE MEN

Votes To Cooperate with National Body in Movement.

COMMITTEE TO HAVE CHARGE OF DRIVE

Plans for Memorial Day Outlined—Unveil Picture of Dyer J. Bird.

Cooperation of Bird-McGinnis post, No. 162, American legion, in a drive fostered by the national organization to reduce unemployment among ex-soldiers was voted at a meeting Tuesday night. Plans for carrying on the work in Marion were adopted.

A committee composed of B. T. Wiant, chairman; G. V. Pascnall and Don Carrier was appointed to take charge of the drive. Every ex-soldier in Marion who is now out of employment, will be classified by this committee and his qualifications, experience and any other information that might be of assistance in getting him work will be recorded.

"We do not expect manufacturers and other employers in Marion to discriminate in favor of an incompetent ex-soldier against a competent civilian," Grant E. Mouser, Jr., commander of the post, said in explaining the plan. "We do expect to ask that if there is a choice between the two, all things being equal, the ex-soldier be given the call."

Plan for Memorial Day.

Plans for participation of the post in Memorial day exercises were also outlined at the meeting. A committee composed of George T. Geran, chairman; Godfrey Leffler, Frank Moore, Chester Roberts and Loren K. Warner was appointed to cooperate with the standing committee, composed of representatives of all military and civic organizations of the city, which has general charge of Memorial day exercises each year.

At the close of the regular business session a picture of Dyer J. Bird, the first Marion soldier killed in the World war, was unveiled. A brief address describing the death of this young soldier was given by G. V. Paschall, who was one of the officers of the company in which Bird was serving at the time of his death. "He died a hero, fighting to prevent his company from being surprised by a night attack of the Hindenburg circus," Mr. Paschall said.

Report of Membership Drive.

A report of the membership drive, the intensive feature of which closed Tuesday, was submitted by Walter E. Hare, chairman. Complete results had not been tabulated. Approximately 100 new members were added by the drive, bringing the total membership to 417. There are still about 200 former members who have not paid their dues for this year and efforts in the future will be centered on these men.

Plans to perpetuate the organization which had charge of the drive were approved. The same system will be used each year in getting new members and in keeping old legionaires in the fold.

OBITUARY

Smith—Frederick Troy, son of Frank D. and Katherine Smith, was born January 10, 1902 and died March 16, 1922, at the home of his mother, on Scioto street, Marion, where he passed most of his life. He was twenty years, two months and six days old. He is survived by his mother, two brothers, DeBert and Warren, and one sister, Katherine, all at home, beside a host of friends. His father died two years ago last September.

At the end of two years high-school training he was compelled to take up manual labor and become the support of the family. He worked for a while at the Erie shop, but was later transferred to the Fairbanks Steam Shovel company plant where he remained until his last illness. He was active in baseball and basketball and always good natured and beloved by all who knew him.

His funeral was held at the Fite Memorial church with the pastor, Rev. Ruby M. Gow, officiating. The remains were laid to rest in the Green Camp cemetery to await the words, "Come Forth."

"Life, I know not what thou art,
But know that thou and I must part,
And when or how or where we meet,
I own, to me's a secret yet.

"Life, we've not been long together,
Through pleasant and through cloudy weather,
But 'tis hard to part, when friends are dear,
Perhaps, 'twill cost a sigh, a tear.

"Then steal away, give little warning,
Choose thine own time.
Say not, 'Good Night,' but in some fairer clime,
Bid me good morning."

Massie, Minnie Mae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Massie, was born May 28, 1919, and departed this life March 17, 1922, at the age of two years, nine months and seventeen days. This bright young flower passed out as a beautiful flower might be plucked from an earthly garden, where it had been tenderly cared for and loved, to be transplanted to an eternal garden of love.

Minnie held a place in the home which can never be filled. Truly the taking of a life so young and full of promise is a mystery past understanding. While the vacant place can never be filled, the fragrant memory of it will be left as an inspiration and comfort to the loved ones left behind. Minnie has passed to her eternal home, where all is joy and sunshine. She leaves to mourn their loss mother, father, brother Elmer, and a host of relatives and friends.

FROM OUR READERS

To Safeguard Community.

Editor Star:—The Marion County Ministerial association recently adopted by a unanimous vote a resolution concerning the enforcement of law against every form of public gambling in our community. The association pledged itself to cooperate with the officers of the law and, if necessary, to institute legal proceedings against individuals or organizations seeking to promote public gambling of any description.

I hope your readers will not infer from this action that the Ministerial association will be neutral in its attitude toward other forms of immorality and lawlessness in our community. Certainly not, if such immorality and lawlessness should be promoted in a public or semi public manner. Gambling is not the only evil that is jeopardizing the morals—to say nothing of the spiritual interests—of the young manhood and womanhood of Marion county. It is not improbable that the Ministerial association will be in duty bound to formulate some action against other forces of lawlessness from time to time.

If a proposal should be made, for instance, to introduce race-track gambling, or to open the theaters on Sunday, or to permit houses of prostitution to be operated without police interference, then the moral and religious leaders of our city would doubtless take the initiative in arousing public sentiment against the evil. I have every reason to believe that nothing will so quickly and so deeply stir the Christian citizenship of Marion as any open endeavor to break down the moral safeguards of our civic and social life.

Let all decent and law-abiding citizens resolve to make Marion an uncomfortable place for any individual or group of individuals seeking financial gain at the expense of the moral well-being of the community. We can do it if we will. And we will do it because we have the power to do it. We will make and keep Marion a safe place for our sons and daughters.

APPEAL MADE TO IRISH LEADERS

Churchill Urges Collins and Craig To Meet.

RESTORING OF PEACE IN ULSTER IS OBJECT

Britain To Mass Troops If Parley Fails—New Republican Plot Is Hinted.

London, March 22.—A public appeal to Michael Collins and Sir James Craig to meet and reach an agreement which would avert war between the Sinn Feiners and the Ulster Orangemen was made in the house of commons this afternoon by Colonial Secretary Winston Churchill.

Collins is minister of finance in the Irish provisional government at Dublin and Craig is premier of the Ulster government.

Secretary Churchill warned that Great Britain would take over control of the Ulster frontier unless the hostile factions are pacified.

Situation Quiet.

London, March 22. — Although advices from the Ulster frontier were meager, it was believed today that the situation is quieting down, following the fresh flareup of guerilla fighting yesterday.

Revolutionary Plot.

Dublin, March 22.—A revolutionary coup to overthrow the government of the Irish Free State will be attempted next week, it was declared here this afternoon by Roderick O'Connor, chief engineer of the Irish Republican army.

According to O'Connor, the movement against the Dublin government will be made by Republicans or adherents of Eamonn de Valera.

"It is certain that a coup d'etat will be launched against the Collins-Griffith government next week," said O'Connor.

Convention To Be Held.

"Despite the refusal of Arthur Griffith to allow the Irish Republican army to hold a convention, it will be held anyhow on Sunday. Eighty per cent. of the I. R. A. is loyal to the republic. The men will refuse to take orders from Griffith or Richard Mulcahy."

Griffith is president of the Dail Eireann, or Sinn Fein parliament. Mulcahy is minister of defense in the Irish provisional government.

Michael Collins is minister of finance but is really the strong man of the government.

Councilman Corcoran, of County Connaugh, who had been arrested by members of the Irish Republican army, was released today. Corcoran was charged with recruiting police for the Irish Free State thus causing disaffection in the Irish army.

O'Connor said he believed that the faction of the Irish Republican army hostile to Collins would control all the barracks turned over to the Irish by the departing British forces.

It is estimated that there will be 650 delegates in the army convention if it is held and that Eamonn de Valera will have 450 of these. The 200 supporters of Collins would probably abstain from voting.

Bandit Gang Leader Arrested.

Cincinnati, March 22. — Sensational developments are expected as a result of the arrest in Detroit of John Sydell, thirty-six, of this city, who has admitted, according to arresting officers, that he was the leader of a gang of bandits who recently stole an $8,000 payroll from the Nash Tailoring company. Three other men have been arrested and detectives are said to be seeking a person who is said to be closely related, in a business way, to officials of the company.

Sues for $250,000.

Akron, March 22.—Verna M. Cargould, Cleveland, has filed suit against A. B. Smith, wealthy piano merchant, here, for a quarter million dollars damages. Miss Cargould charges that in July, August or September, 1921, the defendant unlawfully and wrongfully administered to her certain poisons dangerous to human health.

Y. W. C. A. WORKERS WHO WILL ATTEND BIG CONVENTION

Miss Margaret Ellen Scott

The convention of the National Student assembly, of the Y. W. C. A., at Hot Springs, Arkansas, April 20-27, will be attended by prominent student workers of the organization. At the meeting the assembly of students will elect a national president for the first time in history. Miss Emily Gordon, a Wellesley student, will preside at the sessions until a president is elected. With two other prominent student "Y" workers, Miss Gordon is shown here.

A DIVORCE RING IS FOUND IN NEW YORK

Furnishes False Testimony in Getting Decrees.

New York, March 22.—A divorce ring, which furnished false testimony to men and women seeking to break their marital ties, has been unearthed in the arrest of Jack Berkowitz, of No. 224 west 37th street, according to District Attorney J. H. Banton today.

Berkowitz is in Tombs prison in default of $10,000 bail and will be arraigned tomorrow. He was arrested on charges of subornate perjury after Miss Helen Thomas, a policewoman, had set a trap for him by pretending to seek false evidence to secure her a divroce. She alleges that Berkowitz promised to obtain the "evidence" for $200.

An affidavit against Berkowitz charges him with furnishing false evidence to the plaintiff in the divorce action of Mrs. Sidney Hirsch last December.

Berkowitz is alleged to have maintained rooms in Thirty-Seventh street where fake raids were staged and where men and women were "made up" to resemble the actual principals in divorce actions.

BEETHAM DECLARES HE WILL BE CANDIDATE

Speaker of Ohio House To Run for Governor.

Columbus, March 22. — "More business and less bunk," will be the campaign slogan of Rupert R. Beetham, Cadiz, speaker of the house of representatives, if he seeks the Republican nomination for governor, he indicated here today during an address before the Civitan club.

"I'll run for governor or no office," declared Speaker Beetham, replying to talk that he would run for state treasurer or for secretary of state.

He said he hasn't quite decided whether he will be a gubernatorial candidate.

Find Groceries in House.

When a tenant moved into a house on Silver street, Tuesday, he found a supply of groceries in the house. Sheriff Frank A. Washburn was given knowledge of the find and investigation developed that they were the property of Ray Reidenbaugh, whose grocery at the corner of George and Silver streets was burglarized Monday night. Reidenbaugh identified the goods and was given possession. Practically all of the merchandise that was stolen was recovered.

Outlook for Fruits Good.

Columbus, March 22.—Except for a blight during the winter in northwestern Ohio which is said to have injured sweet cherries and peach trees, the outlook for a normal fruit crop throughout the state is good, according to reports received by the state bureau of markets here.

FORD TO OPEN NEW PLANT ON HUDSON

Will Announce Opening of Power Plant June 1.

[Copyright 1922 by I. N. S.]

Atlanta, Ga., March 22.— Henry Ford, through government agencies, will announce on June 1 the opening of a hydro-electric power plant on the Hudson river, opposite Troy, New York, it became known here today through an interview the Detroit manufacturer gave the Atlanta "Georgian," while on his way to Florida, where he will rest several weeks.

The opening of this project, Ford said, is the basis of his hope that congressmen representing eastern states will be swung to view with favor his offer for the government nitrate plant and waterpower projects at Muscle Shoals, Alabama, now the subject of a congressional inquiry.

Ford declared the plant would be ready to start operation June 1, next. It will develop 8,000 horsepower, he estimated.

DAVIS ONLY CAN SAVE CONVICTED SLAYER

Chamberlain To Die in the Chair Friday.

Columbus, March 22. — Unless Governor Davis intervenes, Roy Chamblin, Portsmouth murderer, must die in the electric chair at the penitentiary here early Friday morning.

The state supreme court today overruled a motion for leave to file a petition in error to the death decree issued by the Scioto county courts following Chamblin's conviction of killing John W. Newman, Sunday-school teacher, and Louisa Doyle, choir singer, both of Portsmouth, in a deserted dwelling near that city, last October.

A hearing is scheduled to be held in the probate court here this afternoon relative to the claim that Edward Moffett, Akron, convicted of killing his wife, is insane. Moffett is under sentence of electrocution early Friday morning.

DAVIS MAY RUN FOR SEAT HELD BY CROW

Discusses Possibility of His Candidacy.

Washington, March 22.—Secretary of Labor Davis was asked by a delegation of Pennsylvania Republicans to become a candidate for United States senator to succeed Senator William E. Crow.

The delegation was headed by former Mayor E. K. Babcock, of Pittsburgh.

Davis discussed the possibility of his candidacy with the Pennsylvanians, but gave them no answer. He explained that before he could leave the cabinet to enter the political arena in western Pennsylvania, he would have to talk the matter over thoroughly with President Harding.

Fire Follows Wedding.

Cincinnati, March 22.—Shortly after 150 guests had left the Toadstool inn here early this morning at the close of the wedding party in which Myer Friedman, Tulsa, Oklahoma, oil operator, and Miss Sarah Krondritzer were the principals, flames swept through the building causing a loss of from $8,000 to $10,000. The seared decorations, the blackened flowers that covered the arch, the silent wedding bells and the burned rice on the floor all combined today to make the scene a desolate one, so much in contrast with the beautiful one of a few hours before.

Hotel Fire in Dayton.

Dayton, March 22.—Philips hotel guests fled into the streets at 2 o'clock this morning when fire originating in the Gallagher drug store, caused damage estimated at several thousand dollars. After an hour, the fire was put under control and the hotel guests went back to bed.

POMERENE RAPS RESERVATION

Says Brandegee Amendment Is Useless.

JAPAN WILL RECEIVE LITTLE FROM TREATY

Declares Anglo-Japanese Alliance Is Greater Source of Security to Japan.

Washington, March 22.—Senator Atlee Pomerene, Democrat, of Ohio, one of the few Democratic senators who are for the four-power treaty, surprised administration forces in the senate this afternoon by launching an attack on the Brandegee reservation, which President Harding and Senator Lodge already have accepted.

Pomerene declared Japan would "get nothing at all" and would "lose her potential security" by accepting the four-power treaty as a substitute for the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

ELEVEN HURT IN A TROLLEY COLLISION

Street Cars in Cleveland Are in Crash.

Cleveland, March 22.—Eleven persons were injured, several seriously, when a Detroit avenue street car crashed into the rear end of a Cleveland & Southwestern interurban car at Superior avenue and West Third street this morning.

The slippery condition of the rails was blamed for the crash. Nearly a hundred other passengers on the two cars were badly shaken up.

Both cars were crowded to capacity. The accident occurred during the rush hour this morning, and the Detroit avenue car, westbound, had just left the square. The interurban, inbound from Elyria, was turning into West Third street. The motorman on the street car set his brakes, but they failed to hold.

Among those injured are: Carl Beltz, twenty-five, Elyria, cut and bruised; Harry Thompson, Elyria, motorman on interurban, scalp wounds; Albert Beltz, twenty-three, Elyria, hand badly cut; Joseph Younger, forty-five, Cleveland, internal injuries; Mrs. Gertrude Stout, Lakewood, fractured right arm.

CHINA HAS NOT YET REPLIED TO JAPANESE

Jap Minister to Tokyo May Soon Resign.

Tokyo, March 22.—China has not yet replied to Japan's note of last week requesting a conference at Peking or Tsin-Tao on the details of the return of Shantung.

There are indications that a hitch has occurred, although the foreign office reports "progress."

Torikichi Ohata, Japanese minister to China, is enroute here for a conference. He denied Peking reports that he has resigned, but admitted "the time for such action may be near."

Stewartsville Fire-Swept.

Stewartsville, March 22. — This Belmont county mining town was swept by a fire which did more than $50,000 damage to the business district early today finally being checked by use of dynamite. Impassable roads prevented other towns from sending aid. Two stores, a confectionery, barber shop and pool room and three homes burned. Crossed wires are blamed.

CALLED VENUS, ART MODEL IS SUICIDE

Miss Pauline Virginia Clark, divorced wife of Lieutenant-Commander William D. Thomas, United States Navy and claimed by art critics to be the "perfect Venus," committed suicide in Boston by drinking poison. She startled her guests at a party by drinking the contents of a vial and died before medical aid could be given her.

AND THIS MAN CAME FROM PENNSYLVANIA

Washington, March 22. — "I want to see President Wilson," was the strange request made to White House attaches today by Peter S. Spelcis, of Philadelphia.

"I have some advice to give him and to ask of him."

He did not wish to see President Harding, he said, because he did not know him.

"But I feel that I know President Wilson very well," he explained, "because I have a picture of him at home."

Peter was informed that Mr. Wilson had moved away about a year ago.

TO COORDINATE ALL ACTIVITIES IN ALASKA

Secretary Fall Announces Federal Move.

Washington, March 22.—Coordination of all governmental activities in Alaska has been ordered, Secretary of the Interior Albert Fall announced today.

Verbal orders have gone out, he stated, designed to eliminate duplication of work in Alaskan affairs wherever possible. These orders provide that in future all bureaus handling Alaskan affairs will take steps to inform a central agency of what work is progressing in their respective jurisdictions in order to avoid working at cross purposes and to facilitate the work generally.

It had not been determined just what form this central agency will take, but the work will be handled through the office of the secretary of the interior—departmental commission—Secretary Fall said. The plan will serve as a temporary measure until it is determined whether President Harding and Secretary Fall are to make an inspection trip to Alaska this summer.

HOUSE CUTS ARMY TO FORCE OF 115,000

Disregards the Advice of the President Today.

Washington, March 22.—Disregarding the recommendations of President Harding and the general staff, the house this afternoon declared for an army of not more than 115,000 men.

Voting against the administration's demand for a military force of 143,000 enlisted men, the house sifted a parliamentary jam from which emerged:

First—Defeat of the administration's amendment to the army appropriation bill to provide for 143,000 men and 7,000 Philippine scouts instead of 115,000 recommended in the measure.

Second—Refusal to accept an amendment to reduce the army to 100,000.

Third—Defeat of an amendment providing for a 50,000 man-power army.

Fourth—Acceptance of the 115,000 armed force proposal.

STATE UNIVERSITY FOR MILITARY SERVICE

Officials of Institution in Favor of Retention.

Columbus, March 22.—The Ohio State university faculty would not under any ordinary circumstances be willing to have the present military service at the university dispensed with, was the statement made by President W. O. Thompson in a recent letter replying to an inquiry made by United States Senator Wadsworth of the senate committee on military affairs, who is investigating various universities in order to find out the value of their military departments.

"It is the opinion of the faculty," Dr. Thompson said, "that the military organization is an aid to the general discipline and morale of the student body. The military officers now detailed to the university are entirely acceptable and in my judgment a group of very high-class men individually. I do not believe the organization we now have could be maintained without army officers.

"The fact that the university at its own expense has provided stables for the horses and that we are now planning to build a headquarters on the stadium field might be taken as very substantial evidence of the attitude of the trustees, the legislature and of the university," he said.

Justice of Peace Brutally Treated.

Beaumont, Tex., March 22.—Dragged from the front porch of his residence, knocked unconscious with a revolver when he resisted, then carried into the country, whipped, tarred and feathered, by six men, J. A. Pelt, 63, formerly a justice of the peace of Sour Lake, is suffering from high fever and wounds at his home here. No reason is known for the attack.

MONEY DISAPPEARS FROM LITTLE BAG

$8,000 and a Spiritualistic Medium Missing.

Huntington, W. Va., March 22.—Like Nigger Jim's hair-ball in "Huck Finn," Professor O. G. Gilbert, Ashland, Kentucky, spirit medium, couldn't evoke the spirits without cash. Therefore when Owen Boster, local grocer, sought the medium for information by which he hoped to get "his boy out of trouble," Gilbert suggested he bring $2,000 along. Boster was impressed with the medium's powers. He produced the $2,000 which was held over his head in a bag. The spirits refused to talk. The outlay was not sufficient. Boster then brought over "other thousands."

Late yesterday he was standing under a roll of $8,000 in a little green bag. The bag was charmed.

The scene was successful, the spirits were talkative and gullable. Boster per instructions, left the medium's home to deposit the money in a bank.

When he got there he peeped in the bag and the $8,000 were gone. Boster told the police he had been swindled.

Today authorities of the tri-state region are looking for the spiritualist. Gilbert, it is said, has been a raging business for the past few months. For one dollar he would tell a woman the gender of her next child, the whereabouts of her husband at night, whether or no her path would be crossed by dark-haired men and much other "valuable" information.

WANTS DEATH PENALTY FOR LOVE PIRATES

Washington, March 22. — Mrs. Charles Townley, who gave a public beating to a young woman whom she charged with "vamping" her husband, today advocated the death penalty for "love thieves" who steal other women's husbands.

"Wives must unite for self-preservation," declared Mrs. Townley, who is a pretty bride of nine months.

"The woman who stole my husband might as well have taken my life. She killed my love and destroyed my happiness. She should be treated by the law as a murderer.

"Married women of the country should join me in demanding the death penalty for those thieves who make a business of stealing married men. I could see the woman I whipped the other day go to the gallows without compunction. If I had a fortune in jewels she could have them all and welcome. Jewels are nothing—my life means nothing—compared to the love I had for my husband."

"DRY" FLAGSHIP IS WITHOUT ADMIRAL

"Carrie Nation" and "Bryan" May Be Ships' Names.

Washington, March 22.—The prohibition "navy" is still admiralless it was stated today by officials of the coast guard service, in denying that R. L. Jack will become head of the rum-hunting fleet of submarine chasers.

Lieutenant Jack will return to Washington as soon as he turns over the fleet to the Florida revenue authorities, it was asserted by Commander Reynolds, chief of the coast guard service.

No action has been taken on suggestions that submarine chasers be given names appropriate to their duties. It has been proposed to name the seven ships for famous anti-liquor advocates—Neal Dow, Carrie Nation, Wilbur Crafts, A. J. Volstead, William J. Bryan, Wayne Wheeler and W. H. Anderson—but up to date, officials said today, the ships were still nameless as well as admiral-less.

OPPOSES CUT IN ARMS FORCES

President's Demand Is Given to Congress.

"BIG NAVY" MEN OF THE HOUSE FIGHT BILL

Disposition of House Is To Cut Army and Navy Expenses to the Bone.

Washington, March 22. — The president's demand that the army and navy forces be not reduced was conveyed to congress by Representative, Republican, of Pennsylvania, and Representative Hicks, Republican, New York, two members of the naval affairs committee, with whom he conferred. It served to lighten the battle lines between the "big" and "little" navy men of the house and to widen the gap that exists between the congressional money providers at the capitol and the White House.

The president informed his congressional callers that the administration is opposed to any cut which will bring the American navy below the point of efficiency contemplated in the conference treaties, either in equipment or personnel. He left them to figure out for themselves whether a presidential veto will greet the naval appropriation bill, now in committee, which is ready to be brought out providing for pay for only 65,000 men and 2,500 officers.

Soon after the views of the president were laid before the naval committee, its members voted in executive session to make the "authorized strength of the navy 80,000 men and 6,000 apprentices."

There is a vast difference, however, between authorized strength and actual strength. The authorized strength today is 137,500 men; the actual strength is around 101,000 men.

Thus, while the navy committee, which determines policy, was fixing the authorized strength of the navy today at 86,000, a figure commensurate with President Harding's wishes, the appropriations committee went ahead on the bill providing pay for but 65,000. Its members said positively that pay for no more would be provided.

Big Navy Men Oppose Cut.

The "big navy" men of the house served notice they would seek to amend the bill before its passage but their chances were considered by leaders as slim, in view of the manifest disposition of the house generally to cut naval and military expenditures to the bone.

The upshot of the day's developments were that President Harding apparently will look to the senate to stop the wholesale cuts of both army and navy. In the senate the president can depend upon Senator Wadsworth, of New York, chairman of the military affairs committee, and Senator Poindexter, of Washington, ranking member of the naval affairs committee, to support the administration's policy.

To File Criminal Charges.

Dayton, March 22.—Stockholders of the Miami-Texas association are contemplating filing criminal procedings against two men who sold stock for the concern and are alleged to have made false and fraudulent statements regarding the presence of oil wells on the land owned by the concern. It is said stock was sold to the extent of about $75,000 by the two salesmen, who now are alleged to be in the west. Charges when filed, will be based on the blue sky laws.

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING

Wishing for sleep is a poor way to get it

A LITTLE wisdom in the daytime is a better assurance of rest than any amount of anxious wishing when nerves are a-jangle at night.

What you do at noon often has more influence on sleep than what you want and hope for, at midnight.

Coffee's drug element, caffeine, whips up the nerves, and when its use is continued there's usually a penalty which no amount of mental effort can avoid.

The part of wisdom, as so many thousands have found, is to turn away from nerve-stimulation and adopt rich, delicious Postum as the mealtime drink. Postum delights the taste, but brings no disturbance to nerves or digestion. Even the little children can share in the enjoyment of Postum at any meal.

It's better to anticipate warnings than to be driven by them.

It's better to encourage and preserve sound nerves and complete health than to listen to the clock ticks at night and say, "I wish!"

You can get Postum wherever good food or drink is sold and served. An order today may be the beginning, for you, of the great satisfaction and comfort which so many others have found in Postum.

Your grocer has both forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Postum for Health—"There's a Reason"

OSTEOPATH RESTORES BLIND SOLDIER'S SIGHT

By Correcting Displaced Vertebra Blindness Is Dispelled.

The following quotation from an article in The Washington Evening Star, May 4, 1918, will be of especial interest to those who heard the eloquent young Australian Thomas Skevhill, in his lecture last night, as the fourth number of the High School entertainment course

'A simple operation on the vertebrae of the neck performed here yesterday by a Washington osteopath, Dr R D Moore has restored to an 'Anzac private, Thomas Skevhill his sight lost through a shell explosion at the battle of Gallipoli in the early months of the war

"Examination of Skevhill by Dr Moore showed a vertebra at the head of the spinal column slightly out of position A correction was made, with the result that the blindness was dispelled The physician explained that the displaced vertebra had impaired the function of nerves indispensable to sight

"The blind man is said to have left Australia for this country a few weeks ago, reaching here Thursday last. He had been treated for blindness in many lands, and had given up all hope of a cure His reason for calling on Dr Moore was only to obtain relief from recurrent neck pains

"At the end of some twenty minutes treatment, however, the patient remarked on seeing intermittent flashes of light, and finally astounded the fellow-soldier who had brought him to the office by joyfully announcing that he could see He has cabled home the joyful news to his mother"

In an interview with The Washington Times May 5, 1918, Thomas Skeyhill told how it felt to regain his sight He said—"Within a few minutes after Dr Moore began manipulating the back of my neck at the apex of the spinal column little flashes of light began to come before my heretofore dimmed eyes and before I realized just what was taking place, I found that I could see My first sensations were those of intense gratitude for the view of this grand old world When I found that the curtain of 'darkness was lifted from my eyes, I experienced a thrill which will be my most vivid recollection for the remainder of my life

'The battle in which I was blinded was fought on the Gallipoli peninsula Physicians ascribed my condition to shell shock and were not at all encouraged as to the possibility of my ever regaining my sight I, however, kept on, and hundreds of physicians, some famous specialists in England, France, and the United States have examined my eyes, all coming to the same conclusion that only a medical miracle could save me from going through life in the black mists"

ADVOCATES SUPPORT OF FIRE DEPARTMENT

As One of Best Means of Reducing Fire Insurance Rates.

J. M. SHAW ADDRESSES CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Inspection Bureau Representative Praises Fire Chief and Urges Building Code.

Support of the fire department, insistence that there be an adequate water supply and adopton of an efficient building code were advocated by J M Shaw, of the Ohio Inspection bureau, as the best methods of reducing fire insurance rates in an address at the chamber of commerce noon luncheon at the Y M C A. building today These are things it lies within the power of the chamber of commerce to accomplish,' Mr Shaw declared 'I don't believe you can improve on your fire department," he added 'Your chief already has a very high rating in his profession"

Condenses Speech

Mr Shaw was late owing to a misunderstanding relative to the new time schedule recently adopted by the C D & M traction line on which he made the trip rom Columbus He didn't arrive until nearly 1 o'clock and consequently he was compelled ot condense his speech, dwelling only on the more important features of his subject, factors entering into the determination of fire insurance rates

"Five factors are largely responsible for determination of rates" he declared "These are exterior fire protection construction, occupancy, interior protection and exposures The latter class is the hardest to decide fairly and one of the most important in final determination of the rate"

Mr Shaw explained briefly the history of the present system of fixing insurance schedules The system now in use in Ohio according to the speaker is used in about twenty states of the Central West and in some of the New England states The rates he pointed out, are based on the experience of all companies

Arrive at Rates.

'One company may have excellent results in insuring a certain type of buildings," Mr Shaw declared 'That company wants to lower its rates Another company has disastrous results with the some type of buildings Naturally it wants higher rates When the two organizations get through investigating the experiences of possibly forty or fifty companies they find that the rates are just about right'

The speaker recommended the automatic sprinkler as one of the best mediums for reducing insurance rates "The sprinkler," he said, is one of the best known types of fire protection His installation cuts fire insurance rates from thirty to ninety per cent"

Average rates in Ohio have been gradually decreasing for the last twenty years, according to Mr Shaw 'They have dropped from an average of about $1 20 twenty years ago to approximately eighty-eight cents today," he said

Holders Pay Bills

"Don't get the idea that payment of a fire loss means merely that another rich corporation has suffered a bump,' the speaker declared in conclusion "The insurance company pays the loss But just keep in mind the fact that it collects from you the money to pay that bill"

Before the arrival of Mr Shaw three-minute talks on 'Why I Belong to the Chamber of Commerce' were made by Walter E Hine and Zebedee Stout H H Warner, of the California state department of agriculture, who is visiting his parents in this city, and Fire Chief T J McFarland also spoke briefly. I W Llewellyn outlined plans for "Clean-Up and Paint-Up" week and J W Jacoby spoke of plans for the centennial meeting of the chamber of commerce April 5

Congressman Sydney Anderson, of Minnesota will speak at the noon luncheon next Wednesday

ELECTRICITY USED IN MARION TREBLES

Between Years of 1914 and 1920, Figures Show.

Remarkable increases have been made in the amount of electricity consumed in the city of Marion in the last six years, according to figures made public by the C. D. & M. Electric company today

Between the years of 1914 and 1920, the amount of electricity consumed more than trebled In 1914 2,099,973 kilowatt hours were used while in 1920 the peak year 6,440,199 kilowatt hours were used Last year the amount used dropped down to 5,926,300 kilowatts but company officials ascribe this to the general depression affecting all business

The use of electricity is heaviest in October, November and December and is lightest in June and July In October of last year 615,794 kilowatts were used in November 656,902 kilowatts were used and in December of that same year 626,807 kilowatts were used In June of the same year only 482,413 kilowatts were used and in July only 493,549 kilowatts were used Officials say that these contrasts would be even more extreme except for the amount used by commercial institutions, which does not vary with the seasons

The reason for the extreme difference in the amount of current used is due to the amount used for lighting which increases as the days grow shorter According to a scale prepared by the company there are about three times as many hours each day requiring light during the winter months as during the summer months In the month of June the average is about two and one half lighting hours each day while in December it increases to about six and three fourths

NEWFOUNDLAND IS HELD A BRITISH CORNERSTONE

Agitation for It Becoming Part of Canada.

SENTIMENT PLAYS ITS PART IN ITS HISTORY

Newfoundland Blocks Largely the Broad Gulf at Canada's Front Door to Europe.

Washington March 22 Renewed discussion by the British press of the United States control of north of the desirability of Newfoundland's becoming a part of the Dominion of Canada raises the question which probably many Americans have that there are two distinct British realms not one in the part of North America now Canadian border Newfoundland and its relations to Canada are brought out in the following bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society

Sentiment plays a part in history and historic geography says the bulletin, and the fact that Newfoundland has insisted on standing alone while all the other British possessions of North America have united to form the Dominion of Canada is probably partly due to a pride that Newfoundlanders have always had in being able to boast that theirs is the senior British colony —the first of the children of the motherland to make its home beyond the seas

Newfoundland had its settlement as early as the 17th century and was a full fledged British colony with a governor when Canada was New France South Africa was in the hands of the Dutch and not a single white settler had landed in Australia

Across Canada's Front Door

Newfoundland has a geographical position of great importance, for it largely blocks the broad gulf into which the St Lawrence river widens and which forms Canada's front door from Europe Moreover Newfoundland is the closest part of North America to the British Isles being only 1,640 miles from Ireland It is natural that the first trans Atlantic cable should have been laid to the shores of Newfoundland in 1858 and that out of seventeen cables now crossing the north Atlantic 11 first touch American soil either on Newfoundland or its neighboring islets When in 1919 aeroplanes finally conquered the Atlantic it was from Newfoundland that both the American and the British machines took off

'Newfoundland has an area of more than 42,000 square miles and is therefore practically half the size of Great Britain Excepting only Cuba which barely exceeds it in size, it is the largest island of the Western hemisphere outside polar waters With its cliffs of brown stone rising 200 to 300 feet broken here and there by deep fjords and bays Newfoundland has a bleak and barren appearance which belies conditions in many parts of the rolling timbered interior Along a number of the streams are fertile valleys by which agriculture and stock raising flourish

The Story in One Word Fish

In late years mining stock raising the manufacture of wood pulp and news print paper and a number of other industries have developed in Newfoundland, but throughout its more than 400 years of history the central story of the island might be told in one work fish Boston and Massachusetts have felt deeply indebted to their 'sacred cod but after all that important creature came from Newfoundland bank, and however valuable it has been to New England it has meant much more to Newfoundland and through Newfoundland to Great Britain

'A good case could even be made for the cod as a claimant for a place on the British coat of arms, for that lowly fish in a way laid the foundation of the world wide British empire Before the discovery of Newfoundland Britishers were of little importance as seafarers The great wealth of cod fish which John Cabot's finding of the island disclosed immediately drew the men of the British Isles out of their insularity

The next year after the discovery -1498— a fleet of Devon fishermen crossed the Atlantic and returned loaded down with fish, and from that time on for centuries the annual crossing and recrossing of the Atlantic took place The British kings looked upon the voyages of thousands of men to and from Newfoundland as the best kind of training for seamen and deliberately discouraged the settlement of the island in order to perpetuate the fishing from a British base Great Britain quickly became a seafaring nation, the navy grew, and with its growth the British empire spread around the world

'The Newfoundland of today has a government in general somewhat like that of Canada It is not a crown colony but a selfgoverning, responsible colony with a governor general appointed by the British king, a premier, and a parliament of two houses

'Its educational system is unique Neither the central government nor political divisions maintain public schools. Instead, religious denominations have charge of schools in proportion to their membership, and funds are furnished to these schools by the government Practically the only unifying authority of the government are in the hands of a board of studies and in the giving of examinations at stated periods

SAYS MORAL FORCES ARE NEEDED TO SAVE EUROPE

Tom Skeyhill Lectures at Central Junior High.

STABILITY OF RUSSIA AND GERMANY VITAL

To Stability of Whole of Europe, Lecturer Declares—Tells of Adventures in America.

Declaring that Russia and Germany are two wheels on the economic wagon of Europe, Tom Skeyhill, Australian soldier-lecturer, in an address at Central Junior High-school auditorium Tuesday night stated as long as they are down Europe will be down and there will be no market for American products. Mr. Skeyhill's lecture was one of the numbers on the lecture course of the senior class of Harding High school.

Mr. Skeyhill told of his experiences in America when he first came to this country.

Struggle of Old Order.

"While chaos is threatening and governments are tottering, the United States still stands," Mr. Skeyhill said. "In Europe I have seen the dying struggle of the old order. How can we hope that our civilization can escape the fate of the other civilizations of Egypt, Greece and Rome? Conquest, civil war, sin and avarice killed Rome and Carthage. I know that our civilization will go the way of others.

"Civilization only lasts as long as its people are worthy of it. National selfishness pervades Europe today. Germany is obsessed with one idea, 'How can we get it back?'

"They have burned every wooden building in Petrograd to keep warm. Babies five years old have never walked because they have never had a square meal in their existence. Yet they are keeping an army in the field of 2,000,000 men to snatch territory from other states. Conditions in all the countries of eastern Europe are the same. You can not save Europe on hatred, revenge, avarice and greed. The remedy is the mobilization of the moral and spiritual forces of the world.

Europe Needs Countries.

"Russia and Germany are two wheels on the economic wagon of Europe. While they are down Europe will be down and there will be no markets for American products. Punish Germany so much, but help her get on her feet. The war is over. Let the dead past bury the dead and go on with the present.

"As to disarmament, Mr. Harding is the greatest fighting admiral of world history. I do not think that we can stop wars, but we can make them less savage."

CHURCH SOCIETY

"Backslider" Is Topic.

"The Backslider" was the topic of Rev. C. L. Allen's sermon at the evangelistic services at Calvary Evangelical church Tuesday evening. He took his text from Luke 9:62, "And Jesus said unto him, no man, having put his hand to the plow and looking back is fit for the kingdom of God."

"You never saw a person look back long who did not soon go back," Rev. Mr. Allen said. "There is nothing more pitiable than to see a soul who has learned to know Christ turn back to the things of the world. The life that once has had the vision of Christ never can be happy away from Him. I'd rather turn my back on the whole world than on Jesus Christ. There are several classes of people who turn back, those who acknowledge they are backsliders and those who do not. Those who are concerned and those who are unconcerned. The man who is unconcerned about his soul, if he is not right with God is in a serious condition."

Daughters of Grace.

The members of the Daughters of Grace of St. Paul's Episcopal church held an all-day sewing Tuesday in the parish house. The time was passed preparing for an Easter sale and a picnic dinner was enjoyed at noon. The society will meet in one week.

Willing Workers Meet.

The members of the Willing Workers class of Fite Memorial Baptist church were entertained Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geary Henderson, of Henry street. Plans were made for knotting a comforter the afternoon of March 30. The class will be entertained next Tuesday evening at the home of the teacher, Mrs. Harry Elliott.

Sermon at Christian Church.

"We must make a distinction between the law and the gospel, the old and the new covenant, Christ and Moses," declared Rev. J. A. Persinger, of Columbus, in his evangelistic address Tuesday evening at the Central Christian church. Rev. Mr. Persinger spoke on the subject, "How Can We Make a Short Bed Longer?" basing his theme on Isaiah 28:20.

"There are three great dispensations in the Bible," the speaker continued. "The Patriarchal, Jewish and Christian. Under the Patriarchal we have the family, under the Jewish the state and under the Christian the church. We are not under the law but the gospel."

"The whole Jewish law was nailed to the cross and hence has no binding force upon us. The ten commandments were defective. A man may keep the ten commandments and be lost," the speaker declared. "God has made three covenants with man. The fleshly covenant was made with Abraham. If their people kept the fleshly covenant they were to be heirs of Abraham. The property covenant was made with Moses. The Jews kept that covenant. Jesus made the spiritual covenant with us; by keeping that we are heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ," Rev. Mr. Persinger declared in closing his address.

Rev. Mr. Persinger will speak this evening on the subject, "Way-Bill."

Whatsoever Circle.

The Whatsoever circle, King's Daughters, met with Mrs. Linius L. Strock at the Presbyterian manse on east Church street last evening. The following officers were installed by Miss Alice Crow:

Mrs. D. O. Weeks, leader; Mrs. A. C. Bachman, first assistant leader; Mrs. Linius L. Strock, second assistant leader; Miss Geraldine Hord, secretary; Miss Clara Diebold, assistant secretary; Mrs. Charles Elliott, treasurer.

The obligation was given to a number of new members by Miss Anna Dennig. Those received into the circle were Mrs. F. C. Springer, Mrs. A. F. Van Deinse; Mrs. C. E. Andersen, Mrs. C. A. Russell, Mrs. C. C. Fisher, Mrs. A. H. Honefanger, Mrs. George B. Knapp, Mrs. D. W. Brickley and Mrs. C. C. Stoltz. The yearly reports were given after which the hostess served refreshments.

The next meeting will be held April 3 with Mrs. F. C. Creviston, of Forest street.

Class Has Social.

The members of Mrs. Frank H. King's Sunday-school class of the Epworth M. E. church enjoyed a social in the basement of the church last evening, about forty being present.

A dinner was served early in the evening and was followed by a program and social hour. Mrs. J. W. Parland sang a solo and Mrs. C. F. Baker contributed several piano solos, after which Mrs. King gave a talk.

HAS NEW METHOD OF SELF-PRESERVATION

System Successful for Irishman in Marion.

Self-preservation is the first law of nature. A brand new method has been discovered here.

A grocery operating in a residence district was sold to an Irishman. Books were padded. The Irishman soon discovered what had happened—that he had been "stung." But he tried to build up the business. Finally, when about to go under, his fertile brain came to the rescue. He "framed it" with a close friend to whom he related his troubles. Then suspicious-looking people began to visit the grocery quite frequently. Things looked pretty suspicious. The word went out that the Irishman had a veritable mint, but that it was not all in the groceries he sold. Then another friend of the Irishman's went to the former owner of the store, according to the story told and gave him some advice. "You own the building and if this Irishman is convicted of bootlegging you'll have to pay the liquor tax," this friend of the Irishman is supposed to have told the former owner of the grocery.

The Irishman sold back his grocery for the same price he paid for it.

The deal was made some time ago. The story was too good to keep, it leaked out today.

THE RAILROADS

Employes of the Pennsylvania railroad who have been in the service for more than one year and who have been members of the voluntary relief department of that road for the year previous to leaving the service of the company need not lose the benefits in the future, according to an announcement received in Marion today. In the past employes leaving the service of the Pennsylvania, were compelled to drop the benefits to which they had been contributing while members of the department. With the new ruling, by paying the same amount monthly employes leaving the service may carry the benefits by applying to their employing officer within ten days after leaving the service. Men under forty-five years old may carry death benefits by paying thirty cents a month, or $3.60 a ear for each $250 of benefits carried. At this rate $1,000 benefit costs the employe who begins carrying it at any age under forty-five years $14.40 annually. Any losses incurred by the system are paid by the railroad company. About fifty employes of the Pennsylvania reside in Marion and most of them are members of the relief department.

Mrs. S. B. McGill, No. 479 Silver street, who fell and broke her ankle about six weeks ago, is much better and is able to be about the house. Mr. McGill is a conductor on the Kent division of the Erie.

M. P. O'Brien, milk and livestock agent for the Erie from Chicago, was in Marion today.

STRIKE OUTLOOK NOT ALARMING

local situation absolutely demands that the welfare of the miners and operators of these districts can only be served by those who know our situation."

Although "afraid to venture an opinion," as to the probable duration of the strike, Mr. Green admitted that unless the government intervenes, it likely will last more than two months.

"If the government does intervene," one union official said, "it is hard to tell how far the strike will go, but federal officials naurally will curb the miners rather than interfere with the operators."

The government, this union official said, now is making no attempt to force the operators into conference with the miners, in accordance with the existing contract.

Green Sees No Settlement.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 22.—"There is no prospect of settlement of the miners' wage controversy in advance of the nation-wide walkout of half a million of hard and soft coal workers April 1.

This flat statement was made today by William Green, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers after he had read a Washington dispatch saying cabinet officers were hopeful of an agreement before the strike becomes effective.

Fight to Finish.

New York, March 22.—In calling a suspension of mining operations throughout the bituminous and anthracite mine fields, the United Mine Workers of America have no desire to inconvenience the public, said John L. Lewis today. The coal operators of the country have deliberately maneuvered to force this suspension. They desire of adlosoop suspension. They desire to dispose of heavy reserve coal stocks at increased prices and are also desirous of forcing an unwarranted reduction of wages upon the mine workers. They further hope to be able to destroy the United Mine Workers of America. In this, they are doomed to failure. The mine workers will fight to protect their organization and to oppose any decrease in wages. If it is to be a fight to a finish, the public must blame the coal operators for any inconvenience it may suffer.

For Six-Hour Day.

Charleston, W. Va., March 22.—The United Mine Workers, of District No. 17, in convention here this morning, with a few scattering negative votes, adopted the report of the scale committee recommending a six-hour day and five-day week and retention of the present wage scale.

A motion made by opponents of the six-hour day to consider the report by sections, was withdrawn before the vote was taken.

Characterizing as "disloyal tactics against our international union," efforts to secure separate wage agreements for states or districts, a resolution was adopted censuring President Frank Farrington, of Illinois, for his suggestions in this direction.

An appeal to railroad brotherhoods to stop carrying "scab" coal was contained in a resolution adopted after the committee had recommended that it be rejected, since it would interfere with contracts between employers and employes. The committee expressed sympathy with its purpose, however.

Australia To Compete.

Washington, March 22.—State-owned coal mines in Australia are laying plans to enter competition with private American mines for domination of the Pacific coast trade, it was declared today by Randolph Bedford, member of the Australian parliament, in appearing before the senate agricultural committee.

Bedford said the Australian state mines could successfully compete with eastern American mines because of the cheaper freight rates.

PERE MARQUETTE IS RULED OUT BY BOARD

Railroad Fails To Meet Men in Proper Way.

Chicago, March 22. — The Pere Marquette railroad was today ruled out of the wage hearing being heard by the United States railroad labor board.

The road, according to the board's decision, did not hold proper conferences with its men on the subject of wages.

Employes of the Pere Marquette presented evidence showing that president Frank H. Alford refused to permit a stenographer to be present to make a record of the conference, grabbed the stenographer's notes and tore them up. The board ordered the wage question back for negotiations between the road and employers.

Goes to State Prison.

Mansfield, March 22.—James C. Smith, twenty-six, an inmate of the Ohio state reformatory, sent up from Hamilton county, was found guilty today by a jury on an indictment charging him with assault with intent to kill Charles G. Fitcher, one of the guards of the reformatory. Smith was sentenced to serve from one to fifteen years in the Ohio state penitentiary.

MARION GHOST PROVES TO BE SICK MAID

Too Sick To Call, Knocks on Wall.

Terrors of the World war failed to affect the heart action of a certain young Marion business man, but when he ran afoul of a "ghost" a few evenings ago courage forsook him. The encounter ended in a strategic retreat. Strategic in that he didn't actually run. He confesses that he hurried.

The young man returned about 9 o'clock to find his family away from home, the house wrapped in that eerie silence that absence of human occupancy brings in the night hours. He had just closed the door when he heard four raps, coming in measured sequence.

The young man had just read that the famous Nova Scotian ghost of Antigonish had disappeared. Visions of a transfer of activities to his own home arose in his mind. The raps were repeated. He listened intently but couldn't quite locate the direction from which they came.

He says that he investigated. He even claims that he searched the house. At intervals, as the search progressed, the raps were repeated. Finally he decided that home was no place for him. He didn't run. He only hurried.

Meeting his mother and brother, who were visiting a neighbor nearby, he informed them of his encounter with a "ghost." Before retreating he had convinced himself that the source of the raps was not natural.

The mother, evidently blessed with a more acute sense of hearing than her son, went directly to the source of "ghostly" activities when, upon entering the house, she too heard the raps.

Pausing at the door of the room of a maid, located on an upper floor, she called to the girl. "Oh missus, I'm sick," came in a weak whisper. "Are you doing that knocking?" she asked. "Yes," was the subdued reply. "Why didn't you call when my son come home?" the mistress asked. "I couldn't, I'm too sick," came from the servant girl.

The young man now agrees with the eminent physician who claims there "ain't no such animal as a ghost of Antigonish."

AN ARCHITECT WILL DRAFT BUILDING CODE

Committee Decides on Action at Tuesday's Meeting.

An architect will draft the building code for the city of Marion and submit it to the joint committee of the city council and civic organizations for its approval. This was decided at last night's meeting of the committee in the Harding High-school building. It was found that the code used by another city and read at the meeting covered public buildings chiefly, no housing code being included.

The committee decided that instead of waiting for a copy of a housing code, one for Marion be drafted. The new code will have "teeth" in it and will be fully as effective as any in the state, those in charge of the move say.

Chairman J. E. Sexton, representing the city council, was strongly in favor of a code that would mean what it said. He told members of the committee that council stands ready to adopt a code that will make for safety of life and property.

H. E. Ammann told the committee that the printed code of the city of Springfield covered the housing sections and could be adopted in toto. The committee was of the opinion that it covered only the state requirements for the erection of public buildings, the housing code being a separate publication.

Other speakers included C. A. Bolin, E. A. Mahoney and F. M. Paschall. The next meeting will be held at the call of the chairman.

Buff To Do Some Battling.

New York, March 22.—Bantamweight Champion Johnny Buff is in for some tall battling in the near future if he harkens to the appeals of two fighters who are angling for his title. They are Joe Burman, Chicago battler, who cleverly defeated Midget Smith in Madison Square Garden Monday night, and Polo Herman, from whom Buff won the total. Burman's exhibition Monday night was good and Midget Smith before the battle was rated one of the best 118 pound class top notchers. Herman today offered to post $20,000 in cash with any stake holder to go to Buff if he will fight.

BASEBALL

Mays Shows Form.

New Orleans, March 22.—Carl Mays showed form in the five innings he worked for the New York Yanks against the New Orleans Pelicans yesterday, allowing three hits and one run. The score was twelve to nothing. Babe Ruth got two hits, a double and a triple.

Shrieves Takes Glory.

Pensacola, Fla., March 22.—Harry Shrieves, a rookie right-hander, took the glory for yesterday's third straight of the Brooklyn Dodgers over the Louisville Colonels. All he did was shut out the Colonels in the three final innings he pitched and slam out a triple with the bases loaded in the ninth.

Looks for Second Baseman.

Catalina Island, March 22.—Bill Killifer, boss of the Bruins, is still scouting for a second baseman. There were reports in camp today that Killifer has a deal on for a minor league star whose identity is a secret. Joe Klugmann and Barney Friberg, who have been tried at the bag, have not lived up to Killifer's expectations.

Young Player Is Fast.

San Antonio, March 22.—A new pitcher, said to be a second Carl Mays, because of his underhand delivery, is working out with the Giants. He is eighteen years old, weights 178 pounds and goes by the name of Zidler. Recently he pitched a no run, no hit game for West Texas Military academy. He will not sign with the Giants this year as he wants to complete his school work.

Colts and Veterans To Clash.

Mineral Wells, Texas, March 22.—Pat Moran's colts and veterans will clash in an exhibition game at Weatherford Thursday. Many promising players are included in the colt line-up and observers here say they will give the veterans a run for their money. Mid-summer weather has struck the training camp here and the Cincinnati manager is taking full advantage of the heat in working all the kinks out of his men.

Players To Be Dropped.

Sequin, March 22.—Several of the second Babe Ruths and junior Walter Johnsons, who looked good the first day in camp, are due to depart from the White Sox entourage tomorrow. At least eight men are expected to be pried loose from the Comiskey payroll. Some will be sent to the minor league teams and others released entirely.

Sotheron and Morton to Pitch.

Dallas, Tex., March 22.—Alan Sotheron and Guy Morton are both likely to pitch in the two game series with Kansas City American Association club which is on the schedule for the Cleveland Indians today and tomorrow. Neither has started thus far this season. Ray Caldwell, former Indian, hopes to pitch a shut out game against his old buddies.

Pirates Show Strength.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 22.—The Pittsburgh Pirates continue to show a tremendous batting strength in their practice games but the pitching department has not got going in a favorable way. Every pitcher up is batted all over the lot for two and three baggers and home runs. The yannigans beat the regulars, 14 to 5, Tuesday.

DARING DEEDS OF UNSUNG SOLDIERS OF SCIENCE

Formal Reports of Great Discoveries, Especially Those of Preventive Medicine, Could Be Made Thrilling Tales by Recital of Facts

HIDDEN behind the technical reports of great medical discoveries are many romances of intense human interest. The plodding work of years of the soldiers of science is never revealed in the formal record of results. Adventure that would enthuse a novelist to a masterpiece is lost completely. The accompanying article only hints at the bare possibilities of the subject, although it is as complete as painstaking inquiry can made it. Probably the epic of Dr. Noguchi's work in the fever stricken areas of South and Central America never will be told and the world is the loser thereby.

By WILLIS STEELL.

FEW things are more aggravating in the experiences of the general news writer than his effort to get the "human interest" element out of stories told him by soldiers of science upon their return to civilization from the wilds where they have been prosecuting investigations. On these, the descriptive parts of the journey, the scientists are almost invariably inarticulate. What happened to them personally figures even less than incidentally. Adventures that might excite, and should excite, them they rarely mention, and when they do so it is but casually. It is more than likely that these personal things fade from memory at once and leave not a trace behind.

A hairbreadth escape from a wild beast, a tumble into what a novelist would describe as a "bottomless abyss," bare safety from flood, starvation, attacks by cannibals, the sort of thing, in fact, that a Herman Melville would have made a long book about, they don't give even a paragraph in their studied but cold accounts of what they have accomplished at risk of life and limb.

Clearing out all this extraneous matter as if it were mere underbrush, they let the light of science fall only on the discoveries they have been permitted to make for science. Even in familiar talks to friends this scientific reticence remains fully as marked.

The case of the great scientists attached to the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research in their fight—a winning fight—with yellow fever is pertinent. Who would not have read with deepest interest what happened to these soldiers of science in their successful campaign in Ecuador or their subsequent adventures in Yucatan, where they stamped out the last seed beds there of yellow fever?

Incidents of Daily Lives Would Be Most Interesting

Who would not have followed step by step the daily lives of these men, especially as accompanying these details would have come, as it has just come, the amazing official report from the Department of the Interior and Sanitation of Ecuador that there has not been a single case of yellow fever in Ecuador since May 22, 1919? And that the last chapter of yellow fever seems to have been written when the Rockefeller Medical Commission completed its work and Dr. Hideyo Noguchi discovered the causative germ of the pest?

Especially interesting would be their human interest tales if these men could tell them, since with the fear of yellow fever dispelled the fear of visiting many beautiful countries has gone too, and people of all lands are visiting them.

What has been done in nearby countries of Central and South America will be repeated in Peru, and there, it is rumored, the Medical Commission had many thrilling experiences.

Yet all that Dr. Noguchi has been driven to say about his life there is bald and incomplete. He merely has mentioned that there were "inconveniences" in getting about owing to the mountainous nature of the country.

"Inconveniences!"

There must have been felt some of these "inconveniences" in getting about Yucatan where the work of investigation led into a region uninhabited to-day, past ancient ruined cities that gave overwhelming evidence of a once great population of Maya Indians who built vast platforms, pyramids, temples and palaces. These ruins only to be seen through a screen of briars, bringing up thoughts of a nearly extinct nation and awakening all sorts of historical questions, might have had power to interrupt a search for a peculiar mosquito, at least for a short time. That it did not exhibits the forceful concentration of the scientific mind.

The Indian and the white man furnish blood to the peculiar mosquito that it prefers to the blood of the negro. And perhaps when the Maya Indians flourished in their great cities this mosquito had already become domesticated. It is probable, indeed, that the Leptospira icteroides that Dr. Noguchi has found to carry the germ of yellow fever was a domesticated insect in the ancient Maya days. All the conditions existed then to promote his general breeding habit. Water was stored in cement lined cisterns, which the mosquito finds ideal for his malign purpose, and there were always water jars and gourds at hand.

Yellow Fever Was a Plague Before the Spanish Invasion

Truly there exist evidences in Yucatan of the early knowledge and dread of the pest and perhaps one day the date of the entrance of yellow fever into human history will be found. At present it is lost in the mist of the past, but this much is known: Maya Indians died plentifully of yellow fever before the conquering Spaniards overran their country.

It would seem that as an interesting and valuable side issue the commission might have sought for—and perhaps found—the date of the birth of the pest, but it was made up of scientists who had nothing to do with side issues. Dr. Noguchi and his associates in science went to Ecuador and to Yucatan for a definite purpose. They carried it out and the world is grateful.

The Yellow Fever Advisory Council of the Rockefeller Institute is composed of Dr. M. E. Carter and Drs. White, Gutierras and Noguchi, all with vast experience in sanitary work. Guayaquil and Merida, noted pest holes, have been cleaned, and recent flurries of the disease from other quarters are not disconcerting for the reason that, the carrier having been found, she can be destroyed. On their return these scientists have calmly taken all the time that they needed to make up reports that figure as valuable documents in medicine. Every other side of their journeys and work they just as calmly ignore.

With a sort of desperate acquiescence in what can't be helped, the writer makes what it is possible to make of their scientific story. And it must be granted that the world actually is more concerned, as these scientists say, with results than with a fascinating travel story. Always the world has dreaded with reason the possibility of serious outbreaks of yellow fever so long as permanent nests of the disease existed in countries with which direct social or economic intercourse is maintained.

Not so long ago hotbeds of this horror were to be found in Havana and Brazilian ports, sending their messengers of death to New York, Philadelphia, Boston and other American ports. The misery, panic and loss this engendered were so great they cannot be estimated, but these Southern ports are now under control and can be kept so by wise and eternal vigilance.

Cases are still being reported from southern Mexico and British Honduras and there is still a possibility that the fever has struck inland in western Africa. The announcement that yellow fever has been stamped out forever cannot yet be made.

Work First Begun in 1918 And Is Still Going On

To acquire full knowledge of the yellow fever germs Dr. Hideyo Noguchi and his associate, Dr. Kliger, both of the staff of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, visited Guayaquil, Ecuador, in 1918-1919 and returned with results of great scientific interest and practical importance. The following season they visited Yucatan on a similar mission. Their experiences in the war on yellow fever are of the widest and deepest interest.

After their return from the first trip Dr. George E. Vincent, president of the Rockefeller Institute, made a report to the public of what work had been accomplished by the bacteriologists at Guayaquil. He was careful to state that Dr. Noguchi did not assert that he had discovered the inciting germ of yellow fever in this investigation and that the bacteriologist wished to continue his studies in other places, especially in Merida, Yucatan.

Dr. Hideyo Noguchi, noted Japanese physician associated with the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research, whose discoveries have world-wide fame and inestimable value.

Yellow fever was ravaging certain districts there and menacing all nearby and semitropical countries, including the West Indies and our own Southern States. By means of a serum which Dr. Noguchi had used effectively in Guayaquil the mortality from the pest was enormously reduced.

It may be as well to remind ourselves who this Japanese is. Educated in the schools of Japan and in the Tokio Medical College, Dr. Noguchi came to this country twenty-one years ago, and almost at once became associated with the Rockefeller Institute in New York city. He has long been a successful hunter of obscure bacterial incitants of infectious diseases, and by his command of cultural technique and by untiring patience and devotion he has thrown light into many dark corners of biology.

In Japan he had cultivated the inciting germ of a disease called infectious jaundice, which is parasitic in rats and other wild animals, and in insanitary places frequented by them it frequently attacks humans and incites serious and fatal disease. The jaundice thus briefly referred to resembles yellow fever.

Therefore Dr. Noguchi knew measurably what he was in search of, and he and his associates were welcomed at Merida by a group of physicians who were eager to aid him in chasing down the elusive pest breeder. These doctors had already failed to induce the cultivation in guinea pigs, but Dr. Noguchi succeeded.

Through a transference to the guinea pigs of a small quantity of the blood of yellow fever patients in the early stages of the attack he found symptoms and changes similar to those observed in the humans. The pigs speedily developed fever, they grew yellow and became torpid and very sick. Many died.

The blood of these experimental victims conveyed to other guinea pigs induced the disease anew through many sequences, and in this infected guinea pig blood was detected by the microscope a minute organism which resembled the Leptospira of infectious jaundice.

Leptospira means slender spiral, a mobile thing. It is a very delicate filament tapering at the ends. It wriggles, twists about and revolves in the blood or culture food.

Expedition to Trace Yellow Fever Germ Only One Example of Romances That Never Were Published—What Dr. Noguchi Accomplished

In a "dark field illumination," by which alone it can be seen, it does not resemble a definite object. To signalize its power to turn the skin yellow Dr. Noguchi added to the name a surname, icteroides. Thus in the vernacular the new pest germ bears the name "slim spiral, the jaundice maker."

Tests with the blood serum of convalescent yellow fever patients indicated that the slim spiral was probably the inciting agent of yellow fever.

Since his return to his laboratory in this city Dr. Noguchi has been at work trying to read the life story of the Slim Spiral, his newest addition to his collection of inducers of human ills, and in searching for an immunizing or curative yellow fever serum. He follows the custom of scientific men by not making claims of discovery, being satisfied to record details and observations. It is probable, too, that he feels the study of more cases in a new locality is desirable.

This year Dr. Noguchi printed a paper on "Recent Experimental Studies on Yellow Fever," in which he made the positive statement that yellow fever is transmitted only through the bite of a female mosquito, the Stegomia. Established also were the exact conditions under which these infected mosquitoes acquire and retain their infectivity for man.

The male mosquito is not innocent by intention, but he happens to have so flabby a proboscis that he cannot get through the skin to suck blood. Apparently his wife is not at all affected by the poisonous germs which she imbibes with the infected blood and with her its transmission is only an incident in an honest day's work.

In a paper subsequently printed on the "Prophylaxis and Serum Therapy of Yellow Fever" Dr. Noguchi affirms ability to produce yellow fever experimentally and obtain cultures of Leptospira icteroides, the latest confirmation coming from Dr. Le Blanc of the Rockefeller Institute.

Dr. Noguchi writes in this second monograph:

"The specific immunity reaction for Leptospira icteroides demonstrated with the serums of yellow fever convalescents in Guayaquil, Merida and Peru constitutes further proof of the etiologic relation of this organism to yellow fever.

"The existence of this property in convalescent serum led to a study of the possibility of preparing a specific immune serum for the treatment of yellow fever and to a consideration of the effect of the inoculation of killed cultures of Leptospira icteroides as a means of protection against the disease.

Animals Made Immune By Injection of Cultures

"Early experiments showed that the injection of killed cultures (named above) into susceptible animals conferred on them a state of immunity which rendered them resistant to subsequent inoculation with virulent cultures. The duration of this immunity has been found to be at least five to six months; the maximum duration is yet to be determined."

The serum was first tried in the treatment of a man in September, 1919, when an American marine on the U. S. S. Chicago, off Honduras, was treated by Gen. T. C. Lyster and Dr. W. Pareja. Gen. Gorgas was present and the value of the serum was definitely indicated. Up to December 31, 1920, the total number of cases of human beings treated by the serum was 170.

"An examination of the results of serum treatment," wrote Dr. Noguchi, "in various localities shows a general agreement among them; the earlier serum is given, the lower the mortality.

"The reduction in mortality among cases treated on or before the third day is undeniable. On the other hand, the serum does not seem to exhibit any beneficial effect on the course of the disease when given after the fourth day of illness.

"Comparison of the mortality rates among untreated cases with those of cases treated with serum on or before the third day brings out a great difference in favor of the treated cases, which it is difficult to explain on the ground of accidental coincidence.

Serum of No Value After the Fourth Day

"Apparently the serum actually helped to cut the infection short before it had caused irreparable injury to the organs, particularly the kidneys. Once such injuries have been done, however, as is usually the case in severe yellow fever by the fourth day of illness, the serum cannot be expected to effect any restoration. In certain of these cases, however, a marked improvement has been reported to have occurred after the administration of serum, owing probably to the fact that injury and disorganization were proceeding slowly."

From the knowledge of the mosquito as a carrier of the inciting of yellow fever and apparently its only source it was clear that the way to prevent the spread of the scourge was either by keeping the mosquitoes from settling at the patients in the early days of their illness through the effective screening of windows and doors or by killing as many of the pests as possible and discouraging the breeding of others by cleaning up the puddles and old cans of water near dwellings in which they breed and near which they love to linger all their lives.

The challenge to science was to discover no definite and demonstrable a living thing as this yellow fever germ which could hide itself away in a drop of blood or in the carcass of a mosquito. The challenge was taken up and pursued until the ancient strongholds of ignorance and belief in fate have been overthrown.

In commenting on what has been done as a sort of summary of his paper, the latest to date, Dr. Noguchi says:

"It is understood that vaccination constituted only a part of the campaign against yellow fever, and in all the localities (Where experimental work was done) it was carried out simultaneously with the antistegomyia campaign. (That is, the fight against the lady mosquito.)

"Just what part the vaccination played in checking the further spread of the disease is therefore not easily estimated; but one fact stands out, namely, that practically all persons vaccinated escaped yellow fever, notwithstanding the opportunities for infection to which both vaccinated and unvaccinated were alike exposed under otherwise identical conditions, as shown by the fact that during the period of ten days following vaccination, before the protective effect of the vaccine could have developed, the number of victims of yellow fever among vaccinated and unvaccinated was equally great.

"Vaccination, which protects the nonimmune person from infection, is a valuable weapon in itself, although it does not supplant the method of elimination of yellow fever by the antistegomyia campaign."

Reduction of Mortality When Serum Is Provided

The transmission of yellow fever from man to guinea pigs and the isolation of the Slim Spiral have been repeatedly accomplished by various workers in the course of different epidemics; in Guayaquil, by Noguchi (1918); in Merida and Peru, by Noguchi and Kligler (1919-1920); in Piura, by Gastiaburu (1919); in Vera Cruz, by Perez-Grovas (1920), and by Le Blanc (1921).

The new serum, Dr. Noguchi states, reduces the mortality in yellow fever when used on or before the third day of the disease. He summarizes:

"Of 170 cases, ninety-five have been treated on or before the third day, with thirteen deaths (13.6 per cent. mortality); while the average death rate of untreated patients during these epidemics has been 66.4 per cent.

"Four hundred and forty-two deaths among 783 cases in these figures were not treated with the serum. Treatment with the serum after the fourth day has no appreciable effect, since there were thirty-nine deaths among seventy-five cases. This is 52 per cent. mortality.

"Prophylactic inoculation of the killed culture is of definite protective value. Among 3,238 persons vaccinated twice no case of yellow fever developed, while 267 cases occurred among the non-vaccinated (Guatemala, Salvador, Tuxpam), notwithstanding the fact that both groups of individuals were equally exposed to infection.

"Among 4,307 persons receiving only a single inoculation of the vaccine only five suspicious cases developed. These figures are reported from Salvador.

"The protection resulting from vaccination does not become effective until about ten days after the last injection, as shown by the frequent case incidence occurring among the vaccinated population within from one to ten days after they were vaccinated. There were twenty-three such cases among 9,637 persons who were vaccinated with the standard vaccine."

Newly Rich Americans Easy Prey in Europe

Own Countrymen Swindle Them Heartlessly of Millions, Paris Police Report

(Special Correspondence.)

Paris, Saturday.

"FINEST crop of suckers ever. And by all the signs the next should be even better."

Such is the estimate of the tourist season in France given to the correspondent by one of the most eminent professors of the "con" game now resident in this country. Never, he added, has money been so easily made in Europe or so much of it. For the first time since Armistice Day he is allowing himself the luxury of a visit home, leaving the winter season in the Riviera and Egypt to look after itself.

For a time, according to his authority, the war played havoc with the confidence trickster. Passport regulations, limitation of travel and "drafts" made life unbearable and unprofitable. Before America came in most European practitioners went to New York, whence they were later driven to Mexico and South America as the last remaining refuges and where they found only poor living. But since ocean travel became possible again they are back at their old haunts and prayerfully recognizing that, whoever else may have suffered, the war was for them a blessing in disguise.

The world has been turned upside down, the old social distinctions have been knocked high; the New Rich abound everywhere—and they are the natural prey of the Bunco Steerer. All the European resorts are swarming with wealthy people, whose riches have come to them in many cases by the fortune of war without any necessary shrewdness on their part. They are uncertain of themselves, ill at ease in their accustomed surroundings and only too ready to fall into the arms of any polite, kindly, well seeming stranger ready to take notice of them. At a low estimate more than five million good American dollars have changed hands—confidentially—in Europe in the last six months—unfortunately the largest share coming out of good American pockets.

So far the professional estimate. And it is entirely borne out by police records and police evidence. Here is an example, quoted from a Paris paper of recent date, of what has been happening, not only day by day but often dozens of times in the same day. "An American visitor to Paris was robbed yesterday of 1500 and 3500 American. Mr. —— told a police inspector that on leaving a bank where he had cashed a draft he was engaged in conversation by two men, one American and the other English. The three eventually dined together, and after dinner Mr. —— was asked if he would go and buy some expensive cigars, for which one of his companions gave him 100 francs. As a pledge of his honesty it was suggested that he leave his pocketbook with his 'friends.' This he did, but as he went away he saw them spring into a taxicab. Mr. —— followed, whereupon the two men burst out laughing, explained that it was all a joke and handed back the pocketbook. Only when they had gone did he discover that the notes had been removed from it."

The police of Paris, who have been taking energetic steps to clean the city of the "con" man and his tribe, express themselves as especially struck by the lack of novelty shown in their methods. The simplest form of the confidence trick has been the most popular and in most cases perfectly successful, as in that quoted above. Nor is it alone in smacking of the days of the Pharaohs. Only a week or two since, for example, a young man was arrested for swindling fashionable tradesmen, especially jewelers. He did so, as whole generations of swindlers have done before him, by securing two adjoining rooms in a fashionable hotel, announcing himself as a Russian prince, cousin of the late Czar, and instructing the jewelers by telephone to submit costly goods for his approval at the hotel. One and all fell to it, sent the goods in charge of trusted assistants. The "Prince" asked them to excuse him for a moment while he showed them to his wife, who was sick in the next room, carefully closed the inner door behind him—and forgot to come back.

Another successful ramp carried out during the past season was in connection with "Seeing the Battlefields." An American trickster opened an office and offered personally conducted automobile tours at rates very much lower than those charged by the reputable agencies. To prospective clients he explained that so great was the rush of business that he could only book seats for several weeks ahead, the full charge to be paid at the time of booking. Although he never made even a pretense of fulfilling his promises he was able to carry on his "business" for several months and finally to get clear away with his plunder.

It is a curious fact that the greatest difficulty the police encounter in their war upon tricksters is the reluctance of the victims to lodge complaints or even to give evidence when called upon. The 1921 crop appears to have considered that they had to pay for experience, even perhaps to regard the experience as worth the price. In at least one case the action of the authorities was brought to naught by the disappearance not of the suspect but of the two principal witnesses against him, both wealthy foreign visitors who had from the first displayed the greatest reluctance to give any information at all.

Largely because of this paradox, which is as strongly evident in the French themselves as in other nationalities, the "con" man has come to evince a disregard for the police authorities which is nothing less than galling. At the present time there is under remand in Brittany a man named Bourgès accused of carrying out a widespread system of "confidence" operations in l'Orient and the neighboring watering places, chiefly among local business men. The one outstanding feature in the case is that when the police took a hand in the matter it was to discover that the suspect was already "wanted" for similar frauds carried out successfully in May last—and that he had not even troubled to change his name or make any effort at all to disguise his identity.

It is sufficiently evident that the American visiting Europe has reason to be on his guard against sympathetic and amiable strangers speaking his own language and prompt with offers to help in any of the little contretemps inevitable to foreign travel, especially to those who do not speak the language of the country. The one golden rule to escape from them, as given to The New York Herald by the eminent professor already quoted, is of the simplest. "Never mix your drinks in strange company." As traveling Americans notoriously obey the laws of their country to the letter, even when abroad, it is doubtful whether this will help any.

Cigarette Holders All the Rage

ONE person in every five uses a cigarette holder every year in the United States according to the production figures of that minor industry. Between 16,000,000 and 20,000,000 of these tubes are manufactured annually nowadays in this country, while 200,000,000 are used annually in Europe and South America. In price these holders range from the "two for five" paper tubes up to jewelled ones that cost as much as $1,500.

In shops dealing in fine cigarette holders the prices range from $13 to $1,500, these last being made of amber and gold or amber and platinum and set with semi-precious stones. Jewelled cigarette holders are used by women smokers, some of whom indulge in the luxury of having the color of the stones with which they are embellished match their costumes. The old three-inch long cigarette holder is quite passe, for a tube must be six inches long, at least, to be really fashionable. Blue and white, green and white, and red and white are among the latest color schemes of these very long cigarette holders for men.

The STRANGE CASE of CAVENDISH
By RANDALL PARRISH
AUTHOR OF "THIS DEVIL'S OWN" "MY LADY OF THE NORTH" ETC.
COPYRIGHT BY RANDALL PARRISH

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Frederick Cavendish, New York man of wealth, receives a letter from an old friend, Jim Westcott, urging him to come at once to Colorado. Deciding to go, he employs a lawyer, Patrick Enright, to draw up a will leaving most of his estate to charity, with a mere pittance to John Cavendish, his nephew and only relative, a dissolute youth. That night Frederick Cavendish is murdered in his apartments. No will being found, John Cavendish inherits the estate.

CHAPTER II.—Two months later Enright informs John Cavendish of the existence of the will, and offers, for $10,000, to say nothing of it. John agrees. Stella Donovan, newspaper writer, learns from Frederick Cavendish's valet that he is not satisfied the body found was that of his employer. She is directed by Farriss, city editor, of the Star, to follow up the case.

CHAPTER III.

On the Track of a Crime.

In the city room of the Star, Farriss, the city editor, sat back in his swivel chair smoking a farewell pipe preparatory to going home. His thoughts were suddenly interrupted by a clatter of footsteps, and, slapping his feet to the floor, he turned to confront Willis and Miss Donovan.

Miss Donovan smiled at him. "Great luck! We've got something; and we dug all week to get it."

"Well, for Pete's sake, shoot!" demanded Farriss. "Cavendish, I suppose?"

The two nodded. Their eyes were alight with enthusiasm.

"In the first place," said the girl, with grave emphasis, "Frederick Cavendish did not die intestate as supposed. He left a will."

Farriss blinked. "That's interesting. There was no evidence of that before."

"I got that from the servants of the College club," Willis interposed. "The will was drawn the night before the murder. And the man that drew it was Patrick Enright, of Enright and Dougherty. Cavendish took away a copy of it in his pocket. And, Mr. Farriss, I got something else, too—Enright and young John Cavendish are in communication further. I saw him leaving Enright's office all excited. Following my hunch, I cultivated Miss Healy, Enright's stenographer, and learned that the two had an altercation and that it was evidently over some document."

Stella Donovan began speaking now: "Celeste La Rue, the blonde of the Revue, has got some kind of hold on John Cavendish. It isn't love, either; it's something stronger. He jumps when she holds the hoop."

"La Rue's mixed up in this deeply, too," Willis cut in. "While she was playing with young Cavendish and seeing him almost daily, the lovely Celeste was also in communication with—guess who?"

"Enright?" Farriss ventured.

"Exactly—Enright," he concluded, lighting his half-smoked cigarette.

"Well," the city editor tapped his desk; "you two have done pretty well, so far. You've got considerable dope. Now, what do you make of it?"

"It may be a dream," Willis said, smiling, "but here is the way I stack it up. The night after he quarreled with John, Frederick Cavendish called in Enright and made a will, presumably cutting John off with practically nothing.

"Immediately after Frederick's departure, Enright calls Carlton's cafe and talks to John Cavendish, who had been dining there with Celeste La Rue. It is reasonable to suppose that he told him of the will. Less than five hours afterward Frederick Cavendish is found dead in his apartments. Again it is reasonable to suppose that he was crooked by John Cavendish, who wanted to destroy the will so that he could claim the estate.

"The dead man is buried, and John starts spending money like water. One month later he receives a letter asking him to call at Enright's office.

"What happened there is probably this: Young Cavendish was informed of the existence of the will, and it was offered to him at a price which he couldn't refuse to pay—just then.

"Perhaps he was frightened into signing a promise to pay as soon as he came into the estate—tricked by Enright. John Cavendish may be innocent, or he may be guilty, but one thing is certain—he's being hadgered to death by two people, from what little we know. One of them is the La Rue woman; the other is Enright."

Farriss sat reflecting deeply, chewing the stem of his dead pipe.

"There's one thing that conflicts with your hypothesis. Valois' statement that he was almost positive that the dead man was not Cavendish."

"I now believe Valois is mistaken, in view of developments," said Willis with finality. "So does Stella—Miss Donovan, I mean. Remember the body was charred across the face and chest—and Valois was excited."

Farriss was silent a moment.

"Stick to it a while longer," he rapped out; "and get La Rue and Cavendish together at their meeting-place, if you can discover it."

"We can!" interjected Willis. "It's Steinway's cafe, the place where the police picked up Frisco Danny and Mad Mike Meighan two years ago. I followed them, but could not get near enough to hear what they said."

"Then hop to it," Farriss rejoined. "Stick around there until you get something deeper. As for me—I'm going home. It's two o'clock."

* * * * * * *

It was the second night after Farriss had given them his instructions that Miss Donovan and Willis, sitting in the last darkened booth in Steinway's cafe, were rewarded for their vigil. As they sat toying with their food, their eyes commanding the entire room, they saw a woman swing into the cafe entrance and enter the booth directly ahead of them.

"La Rue!" whispered Willis to Miss Donovan.

Ten minutes later a young man entered the cafe, swept it quickly with his eyes, then made directly for the enclosure occupied by his inamorata. The man was Cavendish.

In the booth behind, Miss Donovan and Willis were all attention, their ears strained to catch the wisps of conversation that eddied over the low partition.

"Well, I'm here." It was John's voice, an ill-humored voice, too. "But this is the last time, Celeste. These meetings are dangerous."

"Yes—when you talk so loud." Her soft voice scarcely reached the listeners. "But this time there was a good reason," She laughed. "You didn't think it was love, did you, deary?"

"Oh, cut that out!" disgustedly. "You want more money, I suppose."

"Well, of course," her voice hardening. "Naturally I feel that I should share in your good fortune. But the amount I want now, and must have to-night—to-night, John Cavendish—is not altogether for myself. I've heard from the West."

"My God! Has he been located?"

"Yes, and is safe for the present. Here, read this telegram. It's not very clear, but Beaton wants money and asks me to bring it."

"You? Why does he need you?"

"Lack of nerve, I guess; he's out of his element in that country. If it was the Bowery he'd do this sort of job better. Anyhow, I'm going, and I want a roll. We can't either of us afford to lie down now."

Cavendish half smothered an oath. "How much do you want?"

"Ten thousand. I'm willing enough to split fifty-fifty. This Colorado job is getting to be expensive, deary. I wouldn't dare draw on you through the banks."

In the back booth Willis muttered: "Gad, things are going great." Then he bent his ear in sedulous attention and again he could hear the voice of Cavendish.

"You've got to tell me what you're going to do with the money," it said.

The La Rue woman's answer could not be heard; evidently it was a whispered one, and therefore of utmost importance. Came a pause, a clink of glasses, and then a few struggling words filtered over the partition.

"But if the man should talk!"

"Forget it! Ned Beaton is an oyster. Besides, I've got the screws on him. Come on, Johnnie boy, don't be a fool. We are in this game and must play it out. It has been safe enough so far, and I know what I am doing now. You've got too much at stake to haggle over a few thousand, when the money has come to you as easily as this has. Do I get the money?"

He must have acceded, for his voice no longer rose to a high pitch. Presently, when the orchestra began playing again, Miss Donovan and Willis judged the pair were giving their attention to the dinner. Finally, after an hour had passed, Cavendish emerged from the booth, went to the checkroom, and hurriedly left the cafe. Waiting only long enough to satisfy herself that Cavendish was gone, Celeste La Rue herself emerged from the booth and paused for a moment beside its bamboo curtains. Then turning suddenly, she made her way, not toward the exit of the cafe, but to another small booth near the checkroom, and into this she disappeared.

But before she had started this short journey, a yellow piece of paper, closely folded, slipped from her belt where it had been tucked.

"It's the telegram! The one of which they were speaking." Miss Donovan's voice whispered dramatically as her eyes swept the tiny clue within their ambit.

At her words Willis was out of the booth. As Miss Donovan watched, she saw him pass by the folded evidence. What was wrong? But, no—suddenly she saw his handkerchief drop, saw him an instant later turn and pick it up, and with it the telegram. Disappearing in the direction of the men's room, he returned a moment later, paid the check, and with Miss Donovan on his arm left the cafe.

Outside, and three blocks away from Steinway's, they paused under an arc light, and with shaking hands Willis showed her the message. There, in the flickering rays, the girl read its torn and yet enlightening message:

"Orlando, May 19, 1915.

"him safe. Report and collect.
come with roll Monday sure
've seen papers. Remember Haskell.
"NED."

"It's terribly cryptic, Jerry," she said to the other, "but two things we know from it."

"One is that La Rue's going to blow the burg some day—soon."

"The other, that 'Ned,' is Ned Beaton, the man mentioned back there in Steinway's. Whatever his connection is, we don't know. I think we had better go to Farriss, don't you?"

"A good hunch," Willis replied, taking her arm.

In their enthusiasm they upset the custom of the office and broke into Farriss' fullest hour. Into his impatient ears they dinned the story of what they had just learned, ending up by passing him the telegram.

For a mere instant he glanced at them, then his lips began to move. "Beaton — Ned — Ned Beaton — Ned Beaton," he mused, and then sat bolt upright in his chair, while he banged the desk with a round, hard fist.

"You've run across something. I know that name. I know the man. Ned Beaton is a 'gun,' and he pulled his first job when I was doing 'police' in Philadelphia for the Record. Well, well, my children, this is splendid! And what next?"

"But, Mr. Farriss, where is he?" put in Stella Donovan. "Where was the message sent from? Colorado, yes, but where in Colorado? That's the thing to find out."

"I thought it might be the last word in the message—Haskell," ventured Willis.

Farriss, seizing an atlas, thumbed it until he found a map of Colorado. Together the three pored over it.

"There it is!" Stella Donovan cried suddenly. "Down toward the bottom. Looks like desert country."

"Pretty dry place for Celeste," laughed Willis. "I might call her up and kid her about it if—"

Farriss looked at him sourly. "You might get a raise in salary," he snapped sharply, "If you'd keep your mind on the job. What you can do is call up, say you're the detective bureau, and ask carelessly about Beaton. That'll throw a scare into her. You've got her number?"

"Riverside 7688," Willis said in a businesslike voice.

He disappeared into the clattering local room, to return a moment later white of face, bright of eye, and with lips parted.

"What's the dope?" Farriss shot at him.

"Nothing!" cried the excited young man. "Nothing except that fifteen minutes ago Celeste La Rue kissed the Beecher apartments good-by and, with trunk, puff and toothbrush, beat it."

"To Haskell," added the city editor, "or my hair is pink. And by heaven, I believe there's a story there. What's more, I believe we can get it. It's blind chance, but we'll take it."

"Let Mr. Willis—" began Miss Donovan.

"Mind your own business, Stella," commanded Farriss, "and see that your hat's on straight. Because within half an hour you're going to draw on the night cashier for five hundred dollars and pack your little portmanteau for Haskell. Work guardedly; query us when you have to; be sure of your facts, and consign your soul to God. Do I see you moving?"

And when Farriss looked again he did.

GARIS' BEDTIME STORIES

UNCLE WIGGILY MENDS A PAN.

[BY HOWARD R. GARIS.]

[Copyright 1922, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.]

Suddenly one day, as Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane were sitting a little later than usual at the breakfast table, there sounded a hissing noise in the kitchen of the hollow stump bungalow.

"Oh, my! Oh, my!" cried Nurse Jane, jumping up in such a hurry that she nearly frightened the sugar spoon into jumping over the milk pitcher. "I thought that would happen."

"What is it?" asked Uncle Wiggily, hastening out to the kitchen after his muskrat lady housekeeper. He saw on the stove a pan that was sizzling amid a cloud of steam. "What has happened, Nurse Jane?"

"This pan has a hole in it," answered Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "I was afraid it had but I wasn't sure. I put some hot water in it and set it on the stove. The water leaked out of the hole and made the hissing sound of steam. I must send for the plumber to mend the hole in this saucepan."

"Oh, no, you needn't do that," spoke Uncle Wiggily, calm and confident like.

"Do you mean you will go to the store and buy me a new pan?" asked Nurse Jane. "That would be a bit wasteful, as all this pan needs is to have the hole mended."

He held the hot poker on the Bob Cat's nose

"And that's just what I'll do," said the bunny gentleman, with a smile that made his whiskers tickle his pink nose. "I know how to mend holes in a pan. All I need is some soft lead or solder, and a piece of hot iron to melt the lead and let it run into the hole. I watched a tin tinker mend a pan one day, and I know how."

"I know you are pretty smart," said Nurse Jane with a laugh, "but I never knew that you could mend a pan. However, you may try. I'll empty this one for you. But what will you do for some lead?"

"I have some from an old fishing line sinker that I don't need any more," answered Mr. Longears.

"And what will you do for the hot iron with which to melt the lead?" Nurse Jane wanted next to know.

"I'll take the poker and heat it in the fire," said the bunny. "Oh, you'll soon see me mending that pan."

Uncle Wiggily found the piece of soft lead which he had once used on a fish line, though he never caught any fish. The lead was so soft that if a hot poker was held on it the lead would melt and run into a hole, as your ice cream melts on a hot day and runs down into the hole of the cone.

As the day was warm, on account of spring having arrived, Uncle Wiggily took the pan with the hole in it outside on a bench near the back door. He took the bit of lead with him, and told Nurse Jane to put the poker in the fire to heat.

"While the poker is heating I'll clean the dirt away from around the hole," said the bunny. "That will make the lead stick better."

While the bunny was doing this, off over the hill back of the bungalow the bad old Bob Cat was sneaking along, feeling very hungry.

The Bob Cat hid behind a bush and looked from the top of the hill down into Uncle Wiggily's yard.

"There are some ears for me to nibble!" thought the Bob Cat, taking a long breath through his nose, which was quite large, with two holes in it.

Just as Uncle Wiggily had the pan ready to mend, and was calling to Nurse Jane to bring him out the hot poker, the Bob Cat came sneaking along, making no noise at all on his feet, which were like your pussy's.

"There, now I'll fix this pan," said Uncle Wiggily, taking the handle end of the hot poker, which Nurse Jane passed to him out of the kitchen window.

"Yes, and I'll fix you!" howled the Bob Cat. "You can't get away from me as you did from the Fox by pretending that you have the spring stretches!"

"No?" said Uncle Wiggily, thoughtful like and meditating, as he held the hot poker in one paw and the pan in the other. "No, I don't suppose I can get away from you, Mr. Bob Cat. But if I could make you go away from me I'd be just as happy."

"But I won't go!" howled the bad chap. "And you can't make me! What are you going to do there before I nibble your ears?"

"I was going to mend a hole in this pan," said the bunny, "but I guess I'll mend a hole in you instead."

"I have no holes in me!" said the Bob Cat.

"Yes, you have—two holes in your nose!" laughed the rabbit. "Here—how does this feel?" and suddenly he held the hot poker on the Bob Cat's nose.

"Oh, wow! Oh, wow!" howled the Bob Cat, as he ran away to find some ice water for his burned nose. "It doesn't feel good at all!" And I don't suppose it did. Anyhow the bunny made the Bob Cat run away and then the rabbit uncle mended the hole in Nurse Jane's pan. So every thing came out all right.

Have been a sufferer of female disorders for 15 long years and have tried many remedies, but they did not do me any good only for a day or so. Am sorry I did not learn of your medicine at the beginning of my ill health, as I feel I would have been a well woman years ago. I will forever praise your remedies, as they were a God-send to me, and you are at liberty to publish my letter if you think it will help some other sufferer as it did me."

34 vs. 66

Swift's Premium Ham and Swift's Premium Bacon are produced from only the best hogs. Many of the animals we buy do not furnish meat of Premium quality.

Since these are the choice cuts from the best hogs, cured and smoked in the best way, with scientific care and precision, they are naturally in great demand; but these cuts, with the loin from which pork chops come, represent only about 34 per cent of the live animal.

The remaining 66 per cent consists of the cheaper cuts, such as spare ribs, shoulders, trimmings, pigs' feet, lard, etc., and skrinkage in dressing and curing. Shrinkage is equal to one pound in each five, and has no value whatever.

That is why the prices of "Premium" Ham and Bacon and pork loins are higher than the price of the live animal.

Everybody wants them—and yet they are only about one-third of the entire weight. "Premium" Bacon alone is only about 8 per cent.

The great demand for the choicer cuts, and the smaller demand for the cheaper cuts, constitute the reason for the comparatively higher price of the one-third, and the lower price of the other two-thirds. (Some of the lower priced cuts sell at less than the per-pound price of the live animal.

It is only by utilizing all possible by-products and exercising the utmost skill and efficiency that we are able to average a profit of a fraction of a cent a pound on all our business.

N. B. Some very delicious dishes can be prepared from the cheaper cuts.

Being parts of lot fourteen and lot fifteen of the original plat of Middletown, namely, beginning at a point in the north line of said lot 15 which is 48 feet easterly from its northwest corner; thence southerly, parallel with the west line of the lot, 123.75 feet to the south line of lot 14; thence easterly, on its south line, 21 feet; thence northerly, parallel with the west line of said lots, 123.75 feet to the south line of Water Street; thence westerly, on the street line, 21 feet to the place of beginning.

That said Clinton Scheetz is also seized of an undivided fourth interest in the same real estate and praying for an order of partition of said premises, and an accounting for the rents and profits. Said defendants are required to answer said petition on or before the eighth day of April, 1922, or a decree will be taken against them by default.

WOMEN MEET CRISIS IN NEAR EAST RELIEF

Sponsor Lives of 25,000 Children to Keep Them From Starving.

Twelve million women in America are rallying to the cry of the starving children cared for by Near East Relief in Constantinople and Asia Minor. Lack of funds has forced the organization to make a 25 per cent cut in its orphanage appropriations during the spring months, when relief work is more seriously needed than at any other time during the year.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt has formed a Women's Emergency Committee of representative women from every corner of the land. The committee represents 12,000,000 American women, and they appeal to the motherhood of America to save the 25,000 children now under sentence of death because of the cut by Near East Relief. It must be a super-gift, the women say, and must be added over and above to whatever gifts their communities may have made during the year to the work of Near East Relief.

Mrs. Vanderlip a Witness

Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, recently returned from the Near East, says: "Galsworthy said that one of the striking American qualities is a deep adoration for all children. Not just one's own, but for every child anyone of us meets anywhere. When I saw the pale, thin faces, dumb, hopeless eyes and the emaciated bodies under the scanty clothes of the refugee children in the Near East I longed to bring home to the child-loving people here a poignant appeal for help to save their lives and restore childish peace to their hearts. The respect which knowing these people gives one bases my desire to save these children on a serious recognition of the terrible loss the world will sustain if this fine population perishes."

Near East Relief officers estimate that if the women of the United States will keep 25000 children alive it will be possible to meet the needs of the other 75,000 under American care and protection in the Near East.

Among the women who compose the Women's Emergency Committee that will make every effort to "finish the job" are:

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, chairman; Mrs. Philip North Moore, Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, Mrs. George Maynard Minor, Mrs. Josephus Daniels, Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, Miss Bina West, Miss Anna A. Gordon, Mrs. Lena Lake Forrest, Mrs. Ellie Lines Chapin, Mrs. Agnes H. Parker, Mrs. Percy V. ARCHBISHOP HAYES ENDORSES NEAR EAST RELIEF

©U.&U.
Archbishop Hayes.

His Grace, Archbishop Hayes, recently sent the following letter to Near East Relief:

"I inclose check for five thousand ($5,000) from the Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of New York for the appealing Christian work of your committee.

"I am shocked to learn how terrifying are the present conditions in the Near East, especially in Armenia. A stop must be put by the Christian world to this reign of massacre, famine, disease and horrors of every description. All must help.

"I commend most earnestly the appeal of the Near East Relief to the charitably thinking and mercifully disposed people of New York and in particular to the Catholic portion of the community.

"Very sincerely yours,
(Signed) "PATRICK J. HAYES,
"Archbishop of New York."

National headquarters of the Near East Relief are located at 151 Fifth Avenue, New York.

HEAD OF NEAR EAST RELIEF MAKES APPEAL

Charles V. Vickrey

Twenty-five thousand innocent children have been condemned to death by the will of the American people. Such is the statement made by Charles V. Vickrey, General Secretary of the Near East Relief, on the passing of a resolution by the executive board of that organization cutting down the appropriations for relief twenty-five per cent.

"At the lowest possible administrative cost," says Mr. Vickrey, "the Near East Relief has been caring for one hundred thousand children, the homeless little orphans of the Near East. The cut in appropriations, made necessary by the decreased contributions, means that twenty-five thousand equally helpless children now on our doorstep must be refused admission and turned into the streets to perish of cold and hunger. There can be no other fate than that awaiting them. We are their only help and support.

"Five dollars a month will commute the sentence for one child. And I do not believe there is a man or woman in a home in America who could not and would not give that much to save a little child."

MAGNIFICENT CO-OPERATION OF EPISCOPAL COMMUNION

A plan of co-operation in the work administered by Near East Relief has been inaugurated by Bishop Thomas F. Gailor, Presiding Bishop, and council of the Protestant Episcopal Church. An Auxiliary Committee consisting of eminent churchmen, including bishops, clergy and laymen, is being formed. This committee will be nation-wide in its personnel and will have a local executive committee with a prominent layman as chairman.

An especial emergency appeal is going forth to all parishes of the Episcopal Church for a Lenten contribution. Ten thousand orphan children, for whom no other provision is possible today, are made the special charge of the Episcopal Church.

Bishop Gailor has given his personal indorsement to the Lenten appeal of the Near East Relief.
